Communication Regarding COVID-19

If you are reading this statement, you are likely either a current client or a prospective client at Papillon Behavioral Health. We at Papillon would like to take this opportunity to thank you for choosing us to walk alongside of you in working through whatever is causing you problems or distress. We greatly value you and feel privileged to work with you.

We hold the health and safety of our clients, staff, and providers with the utmost importance. We certainly understand the concerns regarding the novel coronavirus (COVID-19), and we share in many of these concerns. We aim to do our part in protecting your health. As a practice, we are temporarily moving to telehealth appointments only. If this has not already been arranged with you, we will be getting in touch with soon. We will keep you updated on any changes, as things will continue to be monitored and new information will continue to become available.

Video and/or phone sessions are not our usual method for providing therapeutic services; however, we are trying to do our part to meet your needs during this time. There is a new consent form that covers these services that we will need you to sign and submit to us prior to beginning these services. Our original consent form has been changed to cover these telehealth services.

Please feel free to reach out with any questions or thoughts regarding the above information. Please understand that we are experiencing a higher than normal call volume at this time, but we are working to do our part during this unique and challenging time.

Sincerely,

Nick Porta, Psy.D.

Owner of Papillon Behavioral Health
